INFORMATION STUDIES

Cox, R. J. (2011). Archival anxiety and the vocational calling. Duluth, MN: Litwin. 027 C878A.

Pressley, L. (2008). So you want to be a librarian! Duluth, MN: Library Juice Press. 020.7 P935S.

Stickell, L., & Sanders, B. (Eds.). (2014). Making the most of your library career. Chicago: ALA. 020.23 M235M.

MUSEUM STUDIES

---

- The Inforum at the Faculty of Information is a multi-use, multi-purpose study and learning space, offering integrated library services, facilities, and resources that support the curricular and research needs of our students and professors.

- We are also open to the public, serving information professionals and other individuals in the community.

- All resources listed are available for borrowing. We offer a free borrowing card to people who do not have borrowing privileges via a University of Toronto TCard.

- We welcome prospective students! Come check out our space, ask us questions, and sign up for a borrowing card.

- For more information: https://inforum.library.utoronto.ca/research/displays-bibliographies

---

Last updated by Eden Rusnell, Inforum Student Assistant – April 2017